The copyright law of the United States - Title 17, United States Code - concerns the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copy order if, in its judgement, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of the copyright law.

Explanation of the Relative Index

What is the Relative Index?

The relative index brings together the various aspects of a subject to show their dispersion thruout the classification. The classification aims to assemble books on the same subject in the same place. However, not all books on the same subject take up the same aspect of that subject. For example, books on motor vehicle engineering are clast in 629.2, but not all books on motor vehicles are on engineering, e.g., those on auto insurance and those on motor transport and traffic. The relative index shows the distinctions based on this concept.

How to Use the Relative Index

Find the subject wanted in its alphabetic place in the index, locate the specific aspect under the subject, turn to the class number in the schedules for verification.

If the subject wanted is not found in the index, look for it under a synonym, under another word of the same root, under a related term (e.g., if what is wanted is not found under "heart," try "cardio-"), or under a broader subject (e.g., if "Lima O." is not found, try "Allen Co. O.").

If the index leads to a number which is not explicit in the schedules, look for a "divide-like" note or check the form divisions.

Never classify solely from the index! The index is a guide to the schedules, not a substitute for them. Always turn to the schedules before classing an item. Conversely, if the approach to the classification of a book is thru the schedules, verify the number chosen in the index to make sure that the proper aspect has been selected. Use schedules and index as an integrated whole.

Topics in boldface type in the index are subdivided in the schedules, making it unnecessary to repeat obvious subdivisions under each main entry in the index. These subdivisions appear in the schedules either explicitly or in the form of "divide-like" notes. The specific items in the subdivisions are entered directly under their own names in other parts of the index. For example, the index has Automobile engineering 629.2, but not Automobile clutches 629.244; however, it has Clutches motor vehicle design & construction 629.244. Conversely it has Insurance 368, but not Insurance automobile 368.572; it does have Automobile insurance 368.572.

Index entries are arranged alphabetically by word, not by letter, e.g., Education technical precedes Educational films. Such few abbreviations as are used, all of which are so common as not to require explanation, are arranged as if spelled out, e.g., Clinton Co. Ind. precedes Clinton Co. Ia. Punctuation is used almost not at all. The indented entries following main entries represent (1) the various aspects of a subject, (2) terms qualified by the main term, and (3) inversions. For example:

Apple
botany	(aspect)
cookery	(term qualified)
fruit culture	(aspect)
Jamaica	(inversion)

Most nouns, tho by no means all, are entered in the plural form; the singular form is more often employed for nouns used as adjectives.

Names beginning with Mc and M' are arranged as if spelled Mac. Germanic modified vowels, such as ä, ö, ü, are arranged as a, o, u.

The dash preceding certain numbers indicates either a form division, or a language or literature subdivision to be added to the base number for each language or literature. For example:

Essays
American	814
other literatures	—4
collections	808.4
see also specific subjects	—04

means that 4 may be added to the number for any literature, such as 834 German essays, 891.74 Russian essays, and that 04 may be added to any subject as a form division, such as 504 essays on science, 634.904 essays on forestry.

Numbers for description and travel have been omitted, inasmuch as they may be derived from comparable history numbers, e.g., 917.3 travel in United States is derived from 973 United States history.

Generally speaking, subjects specifically named in the schedules appear in the index, as well as the more obvious synonyms and constituent parts of the subjects. Related topics, generic terms, and catch phrases are included.

The index does not include all names of persons, places, organizations, minerals, plants, animals, chemical compounds, manufactured articles, and similar enumerations. It does include those names which appear in the schedules plus a substantial selection of terms considered most useful. It is comprehensive but not exhaustive.

Numbers designated as formerly are the numbers used for the topics named in an earlier edition, when such topics have been relocated to a different number in the present edition. Those identified by a dagger † show 14th edition practice, those identified by an asterisk * show 15th edition practice. For example:

Bookbinding 655.7

formerly †686; *655.45

means that this subject is clast in 686 in Edition 14, in 655.45 in Edition 15, in 655.7 in Edition 16.

Once again, never, never classify from the index alone; always verify by checking the schedules!

Index

Symbols and Devices Used in Index

Entries in boldface type are subjects subdivided in the tables.

"Formerly" in italics means that the number following it is no longer used in the sense indicated.

A dagger † preceding a "formerly" number means that the number was used with the meaning indicated in the 14th edition.

An asterisk * preceding a "formerly" number means that the number was used with the meaning indicated in the 15th edition.

Geographic Divisions

The following numbers are accompanied by instructions in the schedules to "divide like 930–999," or "like 940–999." In addition, as described in the Editor's Introduction under Form Divisions, any number may, when appropriate, be divided by 093–099 9.

To divide a single number like 940–999, add to it the digits following the "9" of the appropriate part of 940–999, e.g., wages divided by country 331.29, history of Japan 952, wages in Japan 331.295 2. Because many base numbers which may be divided like 930–999 end in 9 (as in the example just given), some classifiers assume that this is the same 9 as in, for example, 952, and that the 9 must always be inserted. This is not true, e.g., Roman Catholic Church 282, Roman Catholic Church in Japan 282.52 (not 282.952). When the table states that a series of numbers is to be divided like 940–999, the base number is understood to be that part which does not change, e.g., 336.4–336.9 public finance of special countries, 336.52 public finance of Japan.

Division may be made to whatever degree of local specificity is desired, tho it is generally unwise to divide beyond the country or state of the United States, except in 914–919 and other places where the sense requires it, e.g., description of Tokyo 915.213 5, local government of Tokyo 352.052 135.

Obsolescent Schedules

546–547 Inorganic and organic chemistry

The schedules for 546–547 in this edition are completely new, prepared with little reference to earlier editions and assigning new meanings for many numbers. The obsolescent schedules which follow represent the basic pattern in Edition 14 with expansions given to facilitate adjustment. They are provided for the convenience of libraries which cannot immediately reclassify their collections in chemistry

In deciding whether to expand according to the obsolescent schedules or to reclassify fully according to the Edition 16 schedules, libraries should take full cognizance of the fact that the obsolescent schedules are here printed for the last time; they will not appear in subsequent editions

For further convenience in effecting adjustments, a table of concordance is provided for the chemical elements in 546, showing the number for each in Editions 14, 15, and 16 respectively, with italicized numbers in the Edition 14 column showing new provisions in the now obsolescent schedule. No such table is provided for 547, because past ambiguity and overlapping concepts have obscured the intent of the separate provisions so far as modern material is concerned. The concordance eliminates the need for showing Edition 14 and 15 provisions for 546 in the relative index. Broad terms in the earlier provisions for 547 are shown in the index in the usual manner

New provisions in the obsolescent schedules are identified by italics
